MAURICE E. McLOUGHLIN, AMERICA'S CHAMPION TENNIS STAR, SHOWING STROKES THAT BROUGHT HIM WORLD-WIDE FAME

The confidence of American tennis sharps in the team that has been selected by the International Committee of Management to defend the Davis teanis cup against the foreign invited E. McLoughlin, of whom the pictures shown above were taken on the courts of the Crescent A. C. is the American tennis men in the finest form, hopes for winning the Davis match are high. Management to defend the Davis teanis cup against the foreign invited E. McLoughlin, of whom the pictures shown above were taken on the courts of the Crescent A. C. is the American tean's best bet. In his rement practice matches the national champion the 1913 Davis Cup team, said, when he saw the champion play a few days ago, that he could hardly recognize McLoughlin from his play as the Same-man who met Wilding at Winbledon last in spite of his confidence in the strength of the game he plays.

"I am-unalterably opposed to predicting future events," said the champion when asked to give some expression of his views. "During my career as a tennis player I have never given an event to discuss publicly from a critical standpoint his team's prospects. The public can best judge," says McLoughlin, "in comparing the work of the actual play of the contestants."

From the fourth inning to the end of the game Ramey held the home batters, and there was no more scoring, though the Goobers threatened several times.

"Steamboat" Rice, former member of Uncle Sam's Navy, held the Coits helpless throughout the game, only one man reaching the midway station. Rice used a drop ball with telling effect, and had the Richmonders swinging like a rusty gate, ife only allowed three singles in nine innings.

The loss of both games by the Colts gave Petersburg a clean sweep of the series of five games, and shoved the Richmond team into fourth place in the league standing. It also gave the Goobers a good look-in for the second half of the season pennant. The scores:

BRAVES BEAT CINCINNATI

BOSTON, August 8.—Cincinnati lost a ten-inning game to the Braves to-day by a score of 4 to 3. With a sore of 3 to 0 against them in the ninth, the Braves made a desperate assault on the curves of Douglas and tied the score.

FRANK CHANCE HAS

As a baseball manager, Frank Chance, of the Yankees, and one time of the Cubs, has been greatly overrated, in the opinion of the fans who have scrutinized his record since he took hold of the Yankees in the winter of 1913.

The Yanks finished seventh last year, only 14 points ahead of the cellur champions. They have made a showing this year that is only a tride better than in 1913, and the chances are 5 to 1 that they won't finish better than seventh.

This situation has caused many of the fans to look back over Chance's career as manager of the Cubs, and the longer they look the dimmer grows the halo that was placed around Chance's head because the Cubs won four pennants and two world's cham pionship while he was at the helm.

In tossing bouquets at Chance as a manager, many of the fans overlooked that fact that Chance inherited a real ball club when he took over the Cub reins. For several years before Chance Eusch sacrificed him to second; W. Snyder hit safely past third; Laval was out, Sloan to Snyder, both runners moving up a base. Barnett sent both over when he singled to deep left field.

A two-bagger, followed by a single, drove in another run in the second, and in the fourth a base on balls, two singles and an error counted another pair.

From the fourth inning to the end of the game Ramey held the home batters, and there was no more scoring, though the Goobers threatened batters, and there was no more scoring.

That old Cub crowd, with a deaf, dumb and blind manager could have gone out and copped the laurels back in 1996, 1997 and 1998. They didn't need managing. They managed themselves. They won, not through any strategic generalship on the part of Chance, but through sheer ability.

Chance's real test as a manager came when he took charge of the Yankees. And, from all that has come to pass since then, instead of bettering Yankee conditions, he has messed them up in a horrible fashion. He has hired and fired with amazing rapidity, and he has made some glaring blunders in judgment.

Chance, as manager of the Yankees, whered the "All in"

Judgment.

Chance, as manager of the Yankees, placed the "all in" stamp on Outfielder "Birdie" Cree. He sold him to Baltimore last spring for $2.500. He say the error of his way before the sea-(Continued on Second Page.)

PHILADELPHIA. PA. August 8.—
The Duluth Boat Club of Duluth, Minn., again won, the principal honors, capturing the senior eight-oared shell race, winning from the Argonauts by a few feet. They also won the intermediate four-oared shell race.

J. B. Kelly, of the Vesper Boat Club, distinguished himself to-day by winning the association scaior single sculls from a field of nine starters. His old rival, T. J. Booney, led up to the last quarter of a mile, when Kelly's superiority in watermanship began to tell, as he was rowing very clean and had a great spurt left in him for the finish. He went away from Rooney as though he was anchored, and won by 1 or 4 lengths.

In an hour or so later Kelly lined up in the championship single against such famous scullers as R. Dibble and E. B. Butler, of Teronto, and displayed such speed that Dibble had a hard fight for first place.

The senior squadruple scull crew was won by the Riverside Bont Club, of Boston.

The intercity eight scullers' race, which brought New York and Philadelphia together, was a pretty contest from start to finish. A nundred yards from start to finish. A nundred yards from the finish the New York crew put on a spurt and won by ten feet. Time, 6 minutes 28-1-5 seconds.

In the senior quarter mile even; E. Butler, of New York, defeated Dibble by a length.

BOSTON, August S.—Having gained the right to meet America next week in the challenge round for the Davis in the challenge round for the Davis Cup, the Australiasian team defaulted two singles matches, to have been played with the British Isles team today. This left the final score between the countries 3 to 2 in favor of the Antipodes cup aspirants.

The defaults were those of Normon B. Brookes to A. F. Lowe and A. F. Wilding to J. C. Parke. The other two members of the Australasian team S. N. Doust and A. W. Dundop, played exhibition games with Lowe and Parke. Lowe won the first set of his match with Doust and had dropped the second, when, with the games 7-all in the third set, the Australian threw down his racquet and declared he had chough Parke defeated Dunlop Cape.

SUGGESTS SEPARATE BATTING RECORDS

OLD THEORY DISPROVED

Results This Season Show That Four-Year Olds Can Be Raced Without Danger to Health-Golf Has Come to Be Popular Game.

There is a lot of weight in the argument of the Federal League sluggers that separate averages ought to be kept for the left and right-handed batters, owing to the distinct advantage enjoyed by the left-handed batters.

It is pointed out that a left-handed batter ought to hit from 15 to 49 points ahead of the right-hander each season, because his position at the plate gives him at least a two-yard edge on the right-handed swinger. Two yards often is the difference between a hit and an out.

The right-handed man stands on the off side of the plate, from the first base direction. When he swings, the exertion pulls his body farther away from the plate and shifts him in the direction of third base. Then he must recover himself from the swing, reverse his direction, and race over the plate on his way to first.

With the port side clubber it's different. When he stands at the plate he is a foot or so nearer first base than home plate is itself. When he swings, his body pulls away from the plate and toward first. In running for first he does not have to recover himself, as does the right-handed batter, but goes right along in the direction of the swing of his body.

It is pointed out that a left-handed batter ought to get at least twenty more hits each season than a right-handed person of equal ability, simply because the left-handed batter has to travel about two yards less than the right-handed batter. This argument undoubtedly is true, because there are scores of time each season when players who have bunted or driven grounders to the infeld are beaten by a stride.

They've shot a lot of holes this year into the old theory that it is dangerous to work a racing horse in his four-year-old form. The season still is young, yet more than a dozen trotters and pacers that were foaled in 1910 have gone to record marks this year, without any apparent injury to health. Lord Brussels went a mile in 2:09 1-2 early in June on the Lexington track, making the first "under 2:10 mark" for trotters this year. He is a foar-year-old. Peter Pearl. 2:16 1-4: Earlwoofd L. 2:15 1-4, and J. D. S., 2:14 1-2, are other trotters who have done some fine work so far, and all of them will be good purse winners.

Single G., a four-year-old pacer, leads that class in record performance for the year. This horse stepped three heats in 2:08 1-4, 2:08 3-4 and 2:10 1-4 in one of the early Detroit race meets, thereby hanging up a record for four-year-old pacers. Since then Single G. has been stepping around the 2:10 mark, and looks like one of the season's real sensations. Present Queer. 2:11 1-4, and Hedger, 2:16 1-4, also have performed in creditable form.

The wonderful growth in the popularity of the golding game has started agitations in practically every city of size in the United States for links in the public parks, Many of the larger cities already have one or two courses. Others will be laid out this year and next, while in the smaller cities it is certain that at least one course of nine holes will be laid out by the city and be supported by the municipality.

The goifing clan almost has doubled in size in the past year, and it is estimated that there are now at least 5,000,000 goifers in the United States. The most enthusiastic golfing persons declare that in five years more the greatest majority of the adult population of this country will be playing golf during their odd moments.

The investment in golf courses, club houses and paraphernalia is now estimated at something like $500,000,000.
